Madrid, December 29, 2020 - The health pandemic is causing the hunger queues to grow. At this time of year, many families will have nothing to celebrate and no income to put a hot meal on the table. That's why the food company Shukran Group has decided to team up once again with Mensajeros de la Paz to try to make New Year's Eve a little more enjoyable for 200 people.

This is a solidarity action in which all the company's employees participate. Patricia Gallego, CEO of Shukran Group explains that "in this type of action, we are all equal, from the CEO to the last worker in the factory. It's time to help and to do so, we all put on our aprons and cook, cut vegetables, pack... everyone participates. It's time to stop the machines and dedicate a few hours to those who need it most. I am very proud to have such a supportive team that does not hesitate to work until the last minute on December 31 to make the holidays a little better for the most disadvantaged.

The menu that will be prepared for 200 people consists of hot cream for the first course, stewed veal with potatoes for second course, a jar of hummus, sweets and nougat. A complete and healthy menu that contains all the nutrients necessary for a balanced diet.

The distribution will take place on December 31 at 7 p.m. at the Church of San Antón and will be destined for the homeless.

Shukran Group has been collaborating for years with Mensajeros de la Paz by organizing the San Isidro solidarity stew every May 15, donating food to the Father Angel Food Bank and also hiring unemployed personnel.
